Be Winter Weather Ready

Take a little extra caution and be safe this winter!

As the cooler days of fall and winter approach, consider potential hazards both on the road and at home, and be prepared. Although the Puget Sound area doesn’t experience the same extreme weather conditions as other parts of the United States, temperatures, darkness, and rain fall early and often.

AT HOME:

» Look for potential hazards and obstacles. Unblock rain gutters, repair cracks and leaks throughout your home, clear branches or debris that are in danger of falling on your house or vehicle.

» Winterize with sound insulation, weather-stripping frames, storm windows and caulking.

» Insulate pipes (insulation, plastic, and even newspapers help) or turn on faucets slightly (just at a drip) to prevent freezing.

» Install smoke and carbon monoxide alarms, check them regularly, and replace batteries at least annually.

» Never leave sources of heat or fire unattended.

» Always use the correct fuel for the respective heating device.

ON THE ROAD:

» Check that your car is in good condition before bad weather hits, including battery, anti-freeze, tires, and wiper fluid and blades.

» Keep seasonal emergency equipment in the car along with your regular roadside emergency kit, including sand/rock salt/kitty litter, ice scraper and small shovel.

» Avoid driving during heavy snowfall or ice storms when possible.

» Don’t abandon your vehicle in the road if you experience inclement weather. If you must leave your car, pull as far off the road as safely possible.

» Make sure your fuel tank is at least half full.

» Don’t leave your car running unattended, even for a brief period of time.

ON FOOT:

» Dress in layers. Many thin layers are better than one thick piece of material.

» Wear appropriate and warm foot gear. Waterproof boots with non-skid soles are best.

» Choose bright clothing or reflective gear to be visible to motorists.

» Always opt to walk on the sidewalk.

» Ensure that vehicles come to a complete stop before moving towards or around them.
Flooding: Preparing for the Unpredictable

Flooding is a force of nature that often can’t be controlled, prevented or predicted. According to the National Weather Service, 75% of all Presidential disaster declarations in the United States are associated with flooding. The City of Renton monitors weather forecasts and river conditions continuously and participates in the King County Flood Warning System, which notifies the city when the Green and Cedar Rivers reach established flood stages. In the event of a flood warning, Renton residents are notified through NOAA Weather Radio, local radio and television, and local emergency agencies. If flooding is significant, Renton RedAlert or local emergency agencies may provide additional notifications to areas at greatest risk.

Natural channels, wetlands, man-made ponds and open ditches can protect us from flooding by providing outlets for excess water. Constructed storm drainage systems must be maintained and kept clear of debris to help prevent flooding. In Renton, dumping debris into any waterway is prohibited by city ordinance, and we encourage you to report violations to Development Services Code Compliance at 425-430-7373.

Flood losses are not covered under most homeowners’ or renters’ insurance policies. Renton participates in the FEMA NFIP which enables all Renton property owners to obtain considerable flood insurance discounts, whether or not they are in a floodplain. To find out if your property is in a flood-prone area, obtain a Flood Insurance Rate Map, copies of existing Flood Elevation Certificates or contact Gary Fink, Surface Water Utility at gfink@rentonwa.gov or 425-430-7392. For more information on flood insurance and flood preparation, visit rentonwa.gov/emergencies/ or floodsmart.gov.

Renton Receives Diversity Award

The City of Renton’s commitment to building an inclusive city continues to attract attention. Renton was recently recognized by the International City/County Management Association (ICMA) with their Community Partnership award, to acknowledge innovative programs and processes between local governments and other government agencies, private businesses, individuals or nonprofit organizations to improve the quality of life for residents. With more than 97,000 residents and a 165 percent minority growth from 2000 to 2010, Renton has facilitated community engagement through the Mayor’s Inclusion Task Force and other community events such as the recent Teen Summit and African-American Pastor’s Conference. By leveraging resources rather than duplicating efforts, these groups can successfully serve their target groups and enhance credibility in the community.
Speaking Your Language

To better service our residents, the City of Renton has installed a telephone interpretation service city-wide called Language Line. Residents who speak a language other than English will now have the ability to communicate over the phone or in-person with city employees at no charge. For walk-in customers, there will be telephones available with dual handset capabilities, and the customer will be able to have a three-way conversation in their language with an interpreter and city staff. The Renton Community Center, Senior Center, City Clerk, Community & Economic Development, and several other city functions will have access to this service. Over the phone, city staff can access the Language Line interpreter and execute a conference call.

Birth, Life & Death at The Renton History Museum

The Renton History Museum opens a new exhibit, Birth, Life & Death: Early Medicine in Renton, with an exhibit opening celebration on Thurs., Dec. 10, 5:30–7pm. Birth, Life & Death explores the role that doctors and nurses played in the lives of early Renton residents. The exhibit will feature a replica hospital room from Bronson Hospital as well as other photos and displays. The exhibit will be on display until May 21, 2016. The Museum is located at 235 Mill Ave S; museum hours are Tuesday–Saturday, 10am–4pm.

Renton Municipal Arts Commission Update

The Renton Municipal Arts Commission has completed relocation of the sculpture, “Emerging,” to N. Park Drive near Garden Avenue N. (north of The Landing). The bronze and stainless steel statue, by Hai Ying (Jason) Wu, was located near Carco Theater since its commission for the Renton Centennial in 2002. It was relocated for more visibility and accessibility.

Share Your Thoughts on Renton

Your feedback is vital

Select residents throughout Renton will be asked to participate in an important study being conducted by the City of Renton, covering topics including use of tax dollars, citizen safety, and your perception of Renton as a place to live. The information is critical to the city’s understanding of the current state and future needs of the people of Renton. If you receive a letter in the mail requesting your participation, please consider responding; your participation is voluntary but will provide vital feedback for the future of Renton.

Love Them? License Them!

Pet licensing is an important step in protecting your pet by giving them a voice and ensuring their return if they are lost. The City of Renton requires that all dogs and cats aged four months and older be licensed. Pet owners are allowed up to three animals per household. Licenses are valid for one year and must be on your animal at all times. Don’t risk losing your four-legged friend. For information, rates or to renew online, visit rentonwa.gov/living/ then look for Pets and Animals in the menu on the left side of the page or call 425-430-6850.
